

Mail-Gard to the Rescue

Invoices, statements, policies, payroll—if you can't print and mail these critical communications, your company can suffer fines, loss of cash flow and compliance issues. When a business interruption strikes, whether a result of Mother Nature or more often a human cause, it's essential to have a print-to-mail recovery plan you can trust—to help dig you out of trouble.

Mail-Gard Can Help!

Mail-Gard's business continuity and disaster recovery services ensure delivery of your critical documents, keeping you in compliance and keeping you in business.

Think you're covered if your print-to-mail operations are outsourced? Multiple facilities does not equate to a recovery plan! Capacity and capabilities must be considered when finalizing a continuity plan that will work when you need, not just on paper.

Do you have the right recovery plan in place?

Technology is ever increasing and targeted to providing your customers with high quality, critical information to keep you in business—keep your customers informed. You need a recovery partner who understands the advancements in print and insert technology, one who can assist you through a major event or just a peak in your production workload.

About Mail-Gard®

Mail-Gard's business continuity and disaster recovery service has been protecting Fortune 1000 companies, local industries and state and federal customers from serious business interruptions since 1996. We practically started the print-to-mail recovery industry and have been an innovator ever since.

Our strengths are many: the only business continuity and disaster recovery provider to offer two dedicated print-to-mail recovery facilities, a broad range of technical solutions and seasoned, experienced employees with the knowledge to replicate your print-to-mail requirements.

No one can beat our 100% success rate for declaration support. We are proud to have served our declaration customers through multiple and long-term declaration events.
